

Australian Buddawood

Introducing the first sustainable supply of this unique essential oil

Eremophila mitchelli, also known as Buddawood and Bastard Sandalwood, found in the drier parts of South Australia, Queensland and New South Wales, is a wild native Australian plant. In addition to being an essential oil with beneficial properties, the woody and peppery spice odour works well as a fixative base note in fragrances and cosmetic products.

This unique essential oil provides a modern day, cost effective solution to otherwise expensive natural fixatives available in the market.
